"We Have a Treasure Here"

5 Questions with Coastal Hospice's new President, Monica Escalante

Last issue we paid homage to retiring President Alane Capen and introduced incoming President, Monica Escalante, who assumed the role in mid-July. One of the first Latina presidents of a U.S. hospice, Escalante brings two decades of experience as an executive at Montgomery Hospice, one of the largest end-of-life care providers in Maryland. In this issue, she catches us up on her first months on the job, what she's learned and some new directions she would like to take our organization in.

How are you settling in?

It's been exciting. In my first days, Coastal Hospice received a 2021 "Hospice Honors" from HEALTHCAREfirst (page 3). Obviously, the work that went into it happened before I arrived, but the result is not surprising. During my orientation, I went out on visits with each discipline of professionals. In my 20 years in hospice, I have never seen people go to the lengths this team goes to. Their commitment is magic in action.

Where do you think that commitment comes from?

Here's just one amazing story. There was a woman whose mother was in our care. She wanted to be married before her mother died but had not been able to get things organized. Over the course of one day, I watched a chaplain, a nurse and a social worker from Coastal Hospice go above and beyond and make the marriage ceremony happen. I cried after in my car because of the care and compassion I had just witnessed. It can only come from within.

What are some of your first goals as president?

I must tell our community that we have a treasure here – one of the best hospices in the nation. Coastal is something you can't find anywhere else.
Three more things come to mind: 1) When I first started, 90% of hospice cases were cancer and now it's less than half. Treatment plans must be broader and more holistic. 2) In our industry some hospices are aligning with competitors, others are partnering with hospitals or post-acute care. We must decide how we can best serve our community as a nonprofit organization. 3) Over time, people will retire. It is crucial to prepare the next generation of professionals to carry forward the philosophies of hospice.

What are your plans for outreach to communities of color?

In my previous role at Montgomery Hospice, I led a team that developed an outreach initiative to address the longstanding gap in end-of-life care for people of color, especially

From the Desk of the President

Dear Coastal Hospice family and friends,

I feel blessed to be able to write this letter while sitting at my desk in our Salisbury office. Outside Fall is blooming and pretty soon the holidays will be here. Even during this time of COVID - and particularly because of all the cleaning and careful steps we take - the office has a buzz about it. As I alluded to in the Q&A, this staff is amazing - full of energy, empathy, and genuine care.

Even with masks on, you can see the smiling faces of the people that love what they do.

At Coastal Hospice, we are proud of every member of our team. Their commitment to our patients and families manifest in every aspect of their care. From our clinicians in the field seeing patients to our support team managing the offices, we know that each staff member plays an important role and has a direct impact in the quality of life of those we care for.

This is particularly poignant during November, which is National Hospice Month. The month honors the millions of nurses, home care aides, therapists, social and case workers, spiritual chaplains, and administrative staff around the country who play a central role in delivering care to patients at home, in nursing homes and assisted living facilities and in residential hospice.

National Hospice Month also feels like a good time to recognize some of the members of our senior team who have been promoted as we reorganize how our staff is structured. Kudos to long-time staffers Bob Miller, who has been named Chief Operating Officer and Stacy Cottingham, who has been named Chief Clinical Officer. Steve Burris, who joined us in 2019 as VP of Finance has been named Chief Administrative Officer. Our Executive Team is rounded out by our long-time Chief Medical Officer, Dr. Ghulam Waris. We have had many new hires as we grow, and I am thrilled at the lengths our team is going to welcome them to Coastal Hospice and make them feel at home - just as they have for me.

All this growth could not be possible without the steadfast support of our community. During the next months, our campaign Will you "Be an Angel"? will be mailing angel ornaments to raise funds that will allow us to continue providing care to everyone in need, regardless of their ability to pay. Last year this campaign helped more than 1,300 hospice patients and their families receive comprehensive care when they needed it the most. An angel ornament is a wonderful way to honor a loved one, so be in the lookout for those Be an Angel trees across the region!

Finally, I want to take the opportunity to thank you all for the warm welcome I have received from all of you. The generosity and kindness bestowed upon me by our patients and families - as well as our partners in the community - speaks volumes of the deep roots Coastal Hospice has in these four counties and how loved it is by its residents.

I am honored to be part of one of the best hospices in the country and to lead a group of professionals committed to provide the best care for our patients and their families. Thank you!

With warm wishes during the cool fall months,

Monica

This means creating a similar initiative aimed at educating the African American faith community on the Lower Shore because they are key partners, and we want to help them support their congregations. How do you handle the stress of a job this size?

During the 15 years I have been a senior leader in a competitive hospice environment, I have improved my eating habits, developed a solid daily yoga practice and learned that friends and fun are important to balance the stress of a demanding job. I have also learned that building effective teams of dedicated professionals to support the mission greatly lightens the weight of leadership. At Coastal Hospice, I hit the ground running because of the committed Board of Directors and Executive team.

“Hospice Honors recipients are industry leaders in providing quality care and constantly seeking ways to improve,” said Ronda Howard, Vice President at HEALTHCAREfirst. “We are honored to be aligned with high performing agencies such as Coastal Hospice and we congratulate them.”

Award criteria is based on survey results from October 2019 through September 2020. Award recipients were evaluated on a set of 24 quality indicators as part of HEALTHCAREfirst’s Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers & Systems (CAHPS) surveys.

“These results represent feedback directly from our

Escalante points out two of many ways that reports from HEALTHCAREfirst have helped Coastal Hospice maintain its high quality of service.

“This feedback has allowed us to bolster our caregiver education program, which has been especially important during the pandemic,” she said. “Another impact was seeing ways to further streamline our internal workflow to maximize the amount of time we can engage with our patients. Our focus is always on continuous improvement; it’s critical for our staff, patients, caregivers and the community at large.”

Dear Dr. Waris –

It is my hope that this letter will offer more help to others who have a family member with an incurable disease, and I know you will be able to provide more context, which is why I am writing.

When my wife became ill last year, I spent months handling medical crisis after crisis, mostly alone. You can call your doctor for help, but they almost always send you to the ER. I took her by car and sometimes by ambulance several times. It was exhausting. Time I could have spent with her was often spent learning how to do things for her.

Very late in my wife's medical journey, a friend suggested I call Coastal Hospice. It was hard to do because it felt like a "last resort." In reality, it was a lifesaver – for my wife and for me. When you call hospice, I learned, they come. Had I known the array of resources they could bring to our door – day and night – I would have called much sooner. That's what I really want people to know.

Sincerely,
M.M. (A Grateful Husband)

Dear M.M.,

Thank you for your letter. Being a sole caregiver is one of the most overwhelming roles we can take on in our lives. I am sure your wife was grateful for you every day.

You were not alone. More than 43 million people in the US are providing care to a family member or friend each year, according to a National Alliance for Caregivers/AARP report issued in 2020. Family caregivers spend 24.4 hours per week giving care – equivalent to an unpaid part-time job. One-in-four work an unpaid full-time job as a caregiver, averaging 41 hours or more per week. If you add up the value of all those hours spent, it exceeds $470 billion annually – more than annual Medicaid and paid home care spending combined during that time.

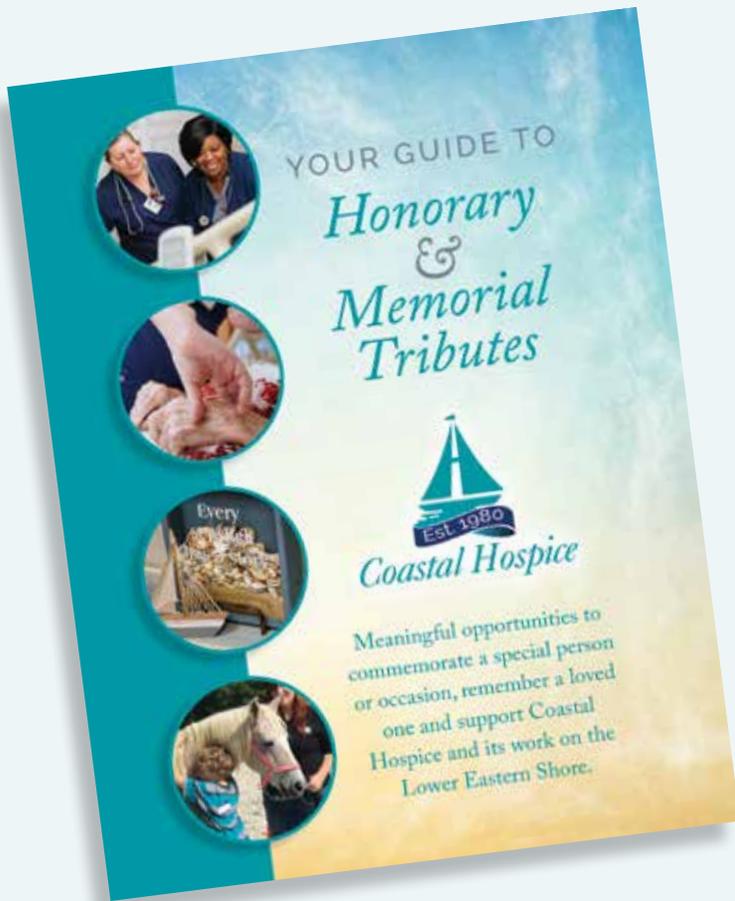

All those stats point to this: a caregiver cannot care for themselves – or enjoy the time left with their loved one – when caregiving alone. It can be exhausting, isolating and depressing. That is why it is so important to change the view of hospice from that "last resort" mentality to "best possible resource."

Our nurses and aides take calls 24/7 and will come night or day if needed. Our case managers will connect you with services that will come to your home. Our chaplains will sit and listen in person at your home (or by phone or online) when you need support.

Hospice should be the first line of defense in a life-limiting illness. I am glad you were able to find assistance and peace of mind in your wife's last weeks, and I thank you for pointing out to others that they could have a different experience with earlier outreach to us.

I will say it here as I say often: call now if you need us; don't wait. We can help.

VOLUNTEER UPDATE

Hello, and happy autumn!

We are so proud of our volunteer community, and we continue to be amazed by your dedication. Though things look different than they did just a couple of years ago, we are thrilled that many of our volunteers are active:

- Providing support and companionship as requested by patients and family members who need a little break from their day and a friendly ear. It is sometimes challenging to make an initial personal connection via phone, but our determined volunteers find ways.
- Assisting with administrative support with duties in the Main Office, Finance and the Access Dept. Others help from home, writing and addressing bereavement notes. Several assisted with preparing envelopes for our annual Angel Appeal mailing.
- At the Stansell House and Coastal Hospice at the Lake, a limited number of volunteers are providing companionship for patients and assisting staff.
- Our Thrift Shop volunteers sort donations, stock the shelves, and help keep the Thrift Shop organized and running smoothly.
- Volunteers regularly help with deliveries. Some pick up orders from local businesses and drop them off at Coastal Hospice locations. Others helped to deliver more than 100 beautiful, donated bouquets of flowers.

Please know that all in-person volunteers follow the COVID regulations of self-monitoring, scheduled testing, wearing a mask at all times and maintaining a safe distance. Whether volunteering in person, or at home, our volunteers continue to make a significant difference every day.

We do not yet have a timeline for in-person volunteer trainings due to current COVID precautions and regulations. However, we are actively looking into other avenues, such as online trainings, and will keep our prospective volunteers updated.

To those able to volunteer now, thank you; to those who cannot yet, we look forward to welcoming you as soon as possible.

On a personal note, I am thankful for the four years I've served in this role, for the friendships I have developed and for the knowledge I have gained. While I am moving on to the next season of my life, I will never forget my time here and will miss you all.

Holiday Run Returns this December!

The Coastal Hospice Holiday Run may be the most anticipated volunteer event of the year as we come together to deliver a poinsettia to each patient on our service.

This year the "run" will be held December 7, 8 and 9. To keep everyone safe during COVID-19, our volunteers will leave the plants on the front door and wave from a distance.

Patients and families have told us what joy this Holiday Run has brought them in previous years. If you want to help, please reach out by calling our office at 410-543-2590.

There's Room at the Thrift Shop – for You!

Our Coastal Hospice Thrift Shop is critical to the community on many levels. The money raised goes to our charitable care, helping those who don't have the resources to pay for hospice stays and certain services not covered by Medicare or insurance.

The shop is also an important community service, providing an affordable place to shop for gently used clothing and shoes, home furnishings and décor, toys and juvenile products, books and music, and much more.

Our Thrift Shop volunteers are critical in keeping the shop operating. They take and sort donations, wash and iron clothing before it reaches the floor, organize the warehouse and bring items to the sales floor. Some who like to work with customers welcome them, point them in the right direction and run the register. You don't need any sales experience to help. If you would like to volunteer, call 410-742-8732.

We Honor Veterans

With Veteran's Day coming soon, it's especially important to highlight our We Honor Veterans program which is supported by US Service Veteran volunteers. These men and women visit Veteran patients and present them with a blanket and certificate of thanks in honor of their service. We are also fortunate to have those in the community who donate handmade quilts and blankets to the veteran program. Please reach out to us if you want to help with this very important program.

GRIEF SUPPORT

Coping with Grief & Loneliness During the Holidays

We know that the list of questions that arise this time of year can seem endless.

How will I get through the next few weeks?

Should I just ignore the holidays this year?

How long will I feel this way?

Should I try and suppress my true feelings so I don't ruin it for others?

Should we change our holiday traditions?

Again, this year the holidays will be different, but they can also be meaningful. In the midst of pain, you can experience hope.

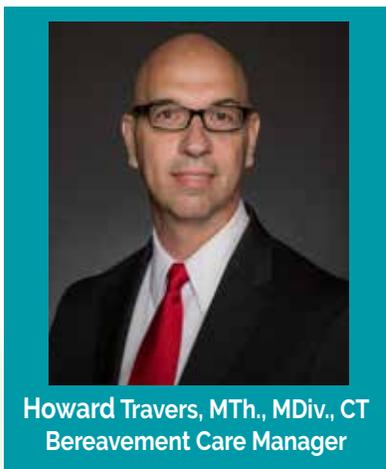

You don't have to pretend things are the same. The energy you might spend evading the issue is better spent planning for a different kind of experience. Few holidays are picture perfect, so give yourself permission to feel what you feel. Some people may advise you to "cheer up," "join in" or "get with the program," but that is hard to do when you are grieving, feeling sad, depressed, anxious or fatigued.

These feelings are normal. They are a sign you cared deeply for someone. It's important to acknowledge these emotions and express them in healthy ways. How do you do that? Over-indulging in food or alcohol may seem like an escape but these devices won't help. Instead, find a positive outlet. Have a hard cry, take a long walk or a bike ride, speak with a member of your clergy or a therapist, talk with a friend about what you're feeling, or start a new tradition in your loved one's memory.

Perhaps the most practical advice is to plan ahead. Consider what will be the most difficult situations and develop a plan of action. What do you want others to understand about how you feel? How can they help? What can they refrain from doing? Answering these questions will help you not feel blindsided during the season.

This fall, our Coastal Hospice support groups will be discussing how to cope with the holidays. Other tips and ideas are in this issue, too. Patti Davis said It takes strength to make your way through grief, to grab hold of life and to let it pull you forward. Be encouraged in knowing that you are not alone on your grief journey. Hope and help is available.

Best regards, Howard

Remember Your Loved One

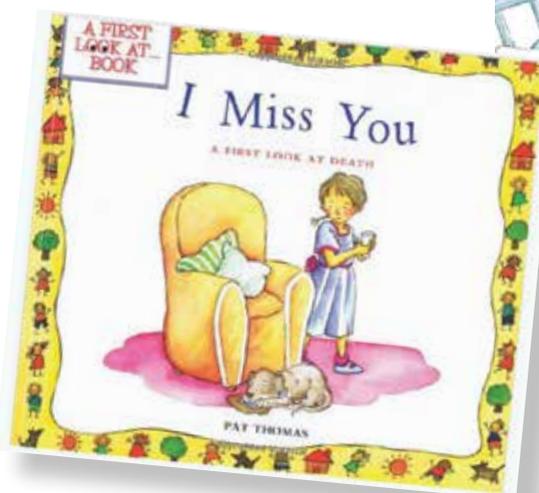

Here are some positive ideas for remembering your loved one during the season:

- Share stories.
 - Go through photos of treasured memories.
 - Create ornaments using photos of your loved one.
 - Light a candle and say a prayer in their honor.
 - Make their favorite foods.
 - Listen to their favorite music.
 - Create a memory box. Have each family member write down a favorite memory, read it aloud and then put it in the box. Each year you can add more if you like.
- Or, don't. If remembering a loved one feels like it is too much, focus on remembering yourself:
- Make your favorite foods.
 - Listen to your favorite music.
 - Watch your favorite TV shows and movies.
 - Write holiday wishes for yourself, focusing on how you hope to feel next holiday season.
 - Make resolutions for yourself, for your healing.
 - Give yourself the gift of faith in yourself, your ability to heal, and in your ability to endure the deep pain of grief.
 - Nurture, care for, and be kind to yourself.

“I Miss You ~ A First Look at Death”

When a close family member or friend dies, it can be difficult for children to express their feelings. This book helps them understand that death is a natural complement to life, and that grief and a sense of loss are normal feelings to have.

This book by Pat Thomas, a psychotherapist and counselor, explores the dynamics of various relationships experienced by children pre-school through early school ages. They are encouraged to understand personal feelings and social problems as a first step in dealing with them. Recommended by Coastal Hospice Bereavement Counselors, this can be an excellent gift to share with young children in your family during the holidays.

When You Have Suffered a Loss

1. Don't "handle" your feelings: feel them.
2. You can only heal if you express your feelings.
3. Seldom is this loss only "this loss" for you.
4. The only person who can best care for you is you.
5. In allowing others to help, you help them, too.
6. Try to show grace with those who try to give you care.
7. Sometimes it makes perfect sense to act a little crazy.
8. Your grieving, timing and progress are yours alone and that is how it should be.
9. You have a choice in how you respond to your loss.
10. This time can be one of "soul-making" unlike any other.
11. Not all your questions will have answers – but they are worth asking.
12. Your time of loss can also be one of discovery.

ADVANCEMENT

The end of the year brings a flurry of activity, including decisions about where to make donations. You have many choices, so we know when you donate to us, you have really considered your selection.

Maybe you had a family member or close friend in hospice care. Maybe, someone you know could have used the care but did not reach out. Or maybe you have seen first-hand what a resource hospice is to the community. Whatever your reason, we promise you this: your donation makes a difference.

at Stansell House. A donation of $500 provides a week of care for a patient in their home, while $1,000 provides four nights at Coastal Hospice at the Lake.

It all adds up to providing services that promote dignity and quality of life for our patients, and we are profoundly grateful of your support through our fundraisers, third-party events and sponsorships. As we head into the holiday season, I wish you and your family great health, happiness and prosperity. On behalf of all our patients and their families, thank you again for your continued support and generosity.

*In appreciation,
Tammy*

YOU CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Will You "Be an Angel"?

During the holidays, trees are everywhere – but none make more of a difference than Coastal Hospice's Be an Angel trees.

Our trees are decorated with angel ornaments bearing the names of those remembered by our supporters. The angels are mailed at the beginning of November with a return envelope. Recipients write the name of their special person on the ornament, complete the information printed on the envelope and mail it back with a donation. The ornaments are hung on the trees, and many of the names are read on WMDT's morning show, Good Morning Delmarva.

In 2020, funds raised through our Be an Angel campaign helped 1372 hospice patients with more than $450,000 in charitable care at the very moment it was most needed. You can donate by mail, but you can also contribute on our website or by texting 345-345 to our secure donation site. (We will print the name of your loved one on an angel ornament and will lovingly display on one of our trees throughout the counties.)

This year, trees will be displayed at: WMDT Morning News, Atlantic Hotel – Berlin. Coastal Hospice Thrift Shop, Crisfield Elks Lodge #1044

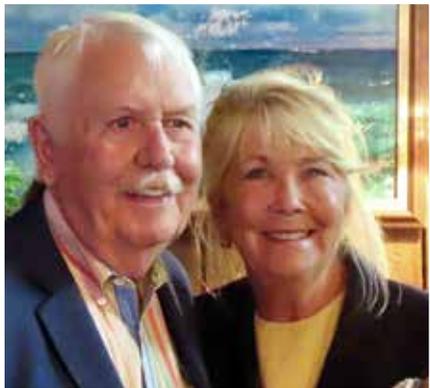

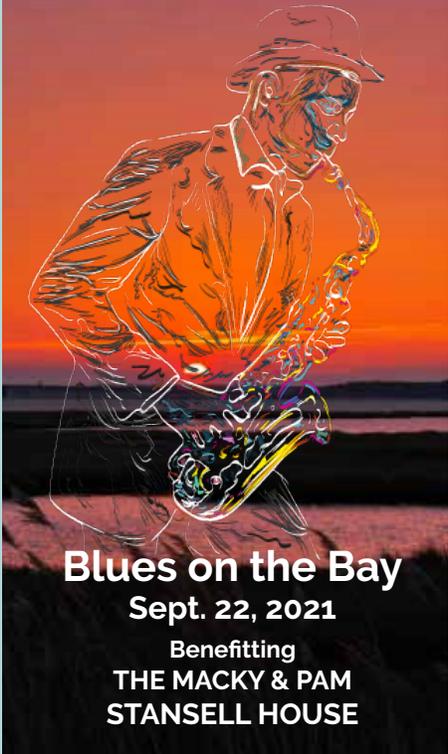

Crisfield American Legion Post #16, Hurlock Town Hall, Hyatt Regency Chesapeake Bay, Ocean Downs Casino, Pohanka Honda, Mercedes-Benz and Toyota, University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Macky and Pam joined new Coastal Hospice President Monica Escalante in greeting guests and, with Dick Widdowson (who chaired the fundraising committee with Macky that raised the money for the facility,) Macky spoke about the commitment of the community to make Stansell House a reality. Thanksgiving kicks off the holiday season with a number of informal celebrations. First comes Black Friday, then Small Business Saturday. Both are followed by something we find even more exciting: Giving Tuesday.

Giving Tuesday is a day set aside during holiday planning to give back to our communities. Each year on Delmarva, the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore spearheads our region's efforts, known locally as Shore Gives More (www.shoregivesmore.org).

This year Giving Tuesday will be observed on November 30. Coastal Hospice is one of nearly 100 charitable groups that will be raising money and awareness through Shore Gives More.

Whether you are a long-time supporter or a possible new donor, this is a great way to get involved because you see the progress on the website. Last year Shore Gives More raised more than $200,000 for local charities.

We hope you will join in the fun – and we thank those who do in advance!

Donor News

Montgomery Financial Services LLC selected Coastal Hospice as the beneficiary of funds raised during their Client Appreciation Party, where they raised $5,645 to benefit the Macky & Pam Stansell House.

Founder and President Jeff Montgomery said, "Unfortunately, throughout my career as a financial advisor, I have had clients come to the point in their lives where they need hospice care. Seeing firsthand how crucial it is for them and their families to be in good hands is why we chose Coastal Hospice as the beneficiary of our fundraiser. We hope that by supporting Coastal Hospice it will help those in our local community live their remaining days in dignity, comfort, and peace."

Mary's Fund, established by the Gietka Family in memory of Bernadette. Money raised supports Coastal Hospice Bereavement group meetings, as well as training for Zoom so that people could participate in the online Bereavement group during the time of the pandemic. Seen here (left to right): Bob Miller, COO Coastal Hospice; Howard Travers, Director of Bereavement Services; Jerry Gietka, and Monica Escalante, President of Coastal Hospice.

Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore approved a grant of $5,000 to help fund the purchase of three "workstations on wheels," also called "WOWs" for Coastal Hospice at the Lake and the Macky & Pam Stansell House. These units are extremely helpful for accessing electronic medical records (EMR) systems and enhance the safe handling and administration of medications, especially regarding the near-industry standard of bar code scanning. The system also eliminates paper use and copier expense while helping to prevent errors in medication distribution.

Humphrey's Foundation has pledged $125,000 for the Meditation Garden at Stansell House. The funds establish the gardens and contribute to the ongoing upkeep. This pledge brings the total donated by the Foundation to more than $525,000 for the Stansell House.

The Estate of Phyllis C. Taylor has donated a bequest of $35,453.15 for the operations of Coastal Hospice at the Lake.
